

LONG-ACTING INJECTABLE ANTIRETROVIRALS AT THE PHARMACY

Long-acting HIV medicines are now available, but some of these have to be given by injection at a clinic or doctor's office.

Our study is looking for persons with HIV to give opinions on receiving long-acting antiretroviral injections at a community pharmacy.

To be eligible you must be

- At least 18 years old and living with HIV
- Currently taking (or previously taking) HIV medications
- Able to speak and read English
- Able to complete a survey and an interview

Participants will be offered a $50 gift card for completing the study
